

2011 JOSEPH HARPER CASH MEMORIAL LECTURE

MARCUS BRIGGS-CLOUD

*What Do Processes of Decolonizing Indigenous Languages and Sustainable Relationships to Food, Women, and Queer Persons Have in Common?
A Theological Discourse*

October 20, 2011 – 7 p.m.

Farber Hall, Old Main

Reception to follow

Marcus Briggs-Cloud, from the Great Maskoke Nation, is a son of the Wind clan and a grandson of the Bird clan. He is an Indigenous rights activist and musician. Currently, he teaches language, philosophy, and history at the College of the Muscogee Nation. Marcus Briggs-Cloud is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma and holds a graduate degree in theological studies from Harvard University.

Free and open to the public. Reception follows.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH DAKOTA

If you are a person with a disability and need a special accommodation to fully participate, please contact Disability Services at 605-677-6389 48 hours before the event.