History

Joseph W. Mauck was born in Cheshire, Ohio on August 17, 1852. He received his BA (1875), MA (1875), and LL.D. (1895) from Hillsdale College in Michigan. He was a professor of Greek (1876-1879), Latin (1881-1883) at Johns Hopkins University before assuming the presidency at the University of South Dakota in 1891. His arrival came at a dubious time due to the sudden death of President Edward Olsen (1887-1889), and the dissension by students and faculty over President Howard Grose's administration (1890-1891). Mauck's term proved to be a stabilizing and optimistic force for the university. President Mauck's six years at USD represented a period when South Dakota high schools were developing better standards and curriculums for admission to institutions of higher education. Only a small number of students were prepared to enter the freshman class, and to compound matters, the legislature was providing limited financial support to the university. The amount of courses at USD increased but with an undermanned faculty. Mauck never faltered under these discouraging factors, not the least of which was the burning of University Hall (Old Main) in 1893. The rebuilding of Old Main began during Mauck's administration. Mauck resigned in 1898 to pursue business opportunities; he became the superintendent and vice president of the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway. In 1902 he returned to his alma mater, assuming the presidency of Hillsdale College until his retirement in 1922. He and his wife have three daughters—Ruth, Frances, and Marcia—and one son-Wilfred. Dr. Mauck died on July 7, 1937 in Hillsdale, Michigan.

Scope and Content Note

The Joseph W. Mauck Collection is composed of four series: Correspondence, Typescripts, Faculty Minutes, and Misc. Due to the 1893 fire in University Hall (Old Main), there are very few records and materials for Mauck's presidency prior to 1894.

The largest series in the Mauck Collection is the Correspondence series. This series contains letters written by individuals requesting a catalog of courses or seeking admission into the university. There is also correspondence that revolves around the daily routine of the campus, particularly with various companies that deal with accounts and supplies for the campus. Some of the correspondence is addressed to members of the Board of Regents regarding financial issues for the university. General correspondence is contained in folders by alphabetical order. Incoming and outgoing correspondence for a person with more than 2 letters are contained in one folder; these are listed directly after "General" files.

The Typescript series contains Board of Regents resolutions, university policies, committee reports, and student events.

The Faculty Minutes series contains the minutes for university faculty meetings; these meetings were convened by the President's Office during this period. These are found in Box 3.

The Misc series contains ephemera such as newspaper clippings, certificates, letter fragments, and a bound invoices book.
